A SONG FOR THINKERS. BY CHARLES SWAIN. BY CHARLES SWAIN.

Take the Spade of Persevetance,

Dig the field of Progress wide,

Every rotten root of faction

Harry out and cast aside;

Every simbleoru weed of Error,

Every weed that hurs thesoil;

Tures, whose very growth is terror

Dig them out whate'er the toil.

Give the stream of Education
Browler channel, browler force;
Hurl the stones of Persecution
Out where 'r they bleck its course;
Seek for strength in sell-exertlun;
Work and still have faith to writ;
Close the crocked gate of forthe;
Make the road to honor straight.

Men are agents for the fortune; As they work, so ages win: Either harvest of advancement, Or the products of their sin: Follow on tirue entitivation: Widen Education's plan; From the Majesty of Nature, Teach the Majesty of Mau.

Take the Spade of Perseverance,
Dig the field of Progress wide;
Every bar to true instruction
Carry out and cast uside;

Beware of Brandy.—We warn the good peo-ple of this city, who occasionally take a little "for the stomach's sake," to beware how they drink brandy, or we wo'd rather say, the red liquor, which is handed out to them at tavern inters under that name. It is a well-known fact, that there is scareely a bar room in the city, however extensive, elegant, or pretentious, that contains a drop of the genuine article. In-deed, very little of it comes into the country from France, and what does come commands an almost fabulous price—a price so great, at any rate, as to exclude it, almost entire, from the retail trade. Indeed, even with the best will to sell a good article, the tavern-keeper eannot surely get it. The article which he buys under the custom-house lock, and which unquestionably has come from France, is nothing more nor less than a portion of the millions of gallons of "pure spirit," i. e., alcohol, which has been exported from this country, to receive, in France, its coloring and its flaver from the essential "oil of Cognac," and then to be im-

This is no illusion, but a fact of daily prac-tice, and it would be safe to conclude, that any glass which you may take up, at any bar in town, is nothing but colored pure spirit, flavor-ed with a few drops of the poisonous oil alluded to. The same may be said of the stuff that is furnished you in demijohns from the wholesale grocers and liquor dealers, for family use, at the rate of five, six, and even seven dollars per gallon. We have heard many incidents of the transactions of Thursday night; but they are not material. The terrible tragedy is passed; and bad as it was, it is well it is no worse; for after a mob is started, its fury may be pointed to the innocent as well as the gulty. Men are often thoughtless about mobs; they even chuckle over lawless exploits, when the results are favorable to the objects in view; but what is the difference in the character of a murder, burglary, or house-burning, by a mob and by an in dividual? Taking the lives of persons acquit ted by the law, if done by an individual, is denounced by all as a capital offense; is the deed canctified by the voice of a crowd? Unfortunately, reason is not heard in a reign of terror The world has witnessed an example of mob law on a large scale; on a national theater, where popular discretion pursued its objects without the restraints of law and custom.-France, in 1790, expunged the despotic institutions of ages, and substituted nothing stable in their place. Individuals and corporations did what was right in their eyes. The seeues onacted are memorable in the world's history. They filled the world with consternation and horror. It was not that there was not intelligenee and virtue iu Frauce; the constitutional assembly that inaugurated the revolution, the national convention that sat amid the storm, contained as much talent and patriotism, and gave as lofty examples of heroic courage, as the world ever witnessed: but unfortunately sucie ty had no power to restrain the actions of the vile and depraved of mankind. The worst of men assumed an affected natriotism, and rioted in crime under the cloak of a zeal for liberty. The record of events in that country illustrate. the dangers of anarchy, and the deplorable con-

My manufactory is at Schiedam, Holland. After several mouths' reflection what title to give it, Lintroduced it to the American public under the name of "Wolfe' Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps." THE BIBLE PANORAMA AT MOZART HALL This painting will remain in Louisville anothe week. It is an exception to the many exhibi tions which have visited our city-the longer i stays and the more it is seen, the better it is liked. Thousands are repeating their visits to Mozart Hall for the purpose of enjoying again the grandeur, beauty, and magnificence of this master-piece of art. The great popularity o this painting, wherever it has been exhibited, i but a just tribute to the judgment and genius of the artist. The subject is a proper one, and the acenes are so simple, truthful, and beautiful that they at once find a response in the mind of every beholder. So when the painting unfoldthe beauties of the garden of Eden, with its flowers and glowing landscapes, its bowers and waterfalls, the spectator can hardly avoid exclaiming aloud, "how beautiful! that is just a I always pictured Paradise in my own mind.' It is this sympathy, with the feeling of the popular mind and the great artistic skill of the painter in representing seemes of beauty to the eye, that must command for this exhibition, as it has hitherto commanded, the admiration o the publicwherever it goes. Repeated visits have only confirmed us in the opinion we first forme of its excellence as a work of art, as well as it utility, especially to the young, in leaving upor the mind vivid moral impressions. Everybody should see it who can; they may obtain useful instructions from it to earry with them through

CORN SALES YESTERDAY .- W. C. D. Whippe Esq., Marshal of the Lou'sville Chaneery Court. sold a lot of 7,695 sacks of corn at auction yes terday, by order of the Chancellor. This is the largest single sale of corn ever made in thi. city. The history of this lot of corn has bee given before, but it would not be inappropriate to make the repetition. It was originally pur chased by Michael Herr & Co., at Shawn town, Itl., who subsequently failed, having bee shipped on the steamers J. H. Done and Leba non for Baltimore, but on the arrival of the boats here, the corn was attached by J. B. Lehmer & Co., of Cincinnati, to whom Herr & Co. were largely indebted. It has been lying i store here ever since, and when first stored two months since, was worth about fifty-five cent per b shel. AN APPEAL FOR LAW AND ORDER. Without an attempt to discuss, in this con will premise that which every well-ordered ntellect familiar with our present condi ion as a city, and our history for the past few ears, confesses, viz: that a disregard for law disrespect for justice, and a contempt for the holesome provisions of good society, has obained in Louisville to a degree beyondanythin hown in municipal experience in our nations areer. When evils are known to exist which reso destructive to our business interests, an o the general welfare, it becomes the part o every good citizen to cast about him for the cause of the existing evil, and the means o emedy. As if the fair fame of our city had no cen sufficiently blasted by the events of the preceding two years, the erowning aet of law essness remained to be consummated on Thurs lay night last, when four miserable beings were sacrificed upon the altar of the basest huma assions, in spite of the majesty of the law and in contempt of all municipal authority It is high time that men of character, solid wort and influence, whose bosoms yet feel an im pulse of patriotism, whose affections yet linger about their homes and families; that men who nive an appreciation of good community should uncil together for their own personal safety or the protection of their families, and for the apremacy of the laws. With this view, it is roposed that a meeting of citizens, without stinction of party, seet, or ereed, be called here a movement may be made toward restorg Louisville to her former proud positio nong her sister cities of the Union. 'Tuesda' vening next is suggested as a propitious time and the Court-house as the place for this popu

ar convocation. What say our fellow-citizen the proposition?

A SADDENING RECITAL. The announcement of the suleidal death, and he circumstances connected with the sad end f young Poindexter, already announced, are lmost overpowering to the sensitive mind. will be remembered that he jumped overboar rom the steamer Statesman and was drowned The young mun, it appears, called the captain o the side of the boat, placed a note and a ring this hands, and east himself into the waters o ne Ohio, disappearing from this world forever We are permitted to copy the note, which read ius: "Farewell father and mother, brother and ster, I am tired of life. Benjamin Franklin Veigert, the penitentiary thief from Lexington ky., is the cause of this. Good-bye, my friends. But an impressive postscript to a younger broth r contains a voluminous warning in itself which should fall upon the ears of every youth n the land with electrical force-"My younges prother, beware of your company and the bot e." There is in the awful death of this mis ruided young man a more forcible lesson o raming to erring childhood than is contained many a volume of flowery rhetoric or pointe rmon. Would that every youth in the land ould read it, and hear it, and feel it. "Beware f your company and the bottle !"

ANOTHER CASE OF SELF-DESTRUCTION But our chapter of crime would seem incon lete without the recital of the circumstance nneeted with the suicide of a frail young wo nan known in this city as Mary Ellen Jones, ar amate of the house of the notorious Elvira Glover, near the corner of Shelby and Green st. The young woman wounded herself mortally 'clock, the ball penetrating the left breast t seems that she obtained the pistol from Officer Lloyd, a policeman in one of he upper districts, exchanging with him gold watch for a pair of the deadly weapon It appears that she has contemplated self-destruction for some time, making the attemp while riding in a carriage with a female com panion a day or two ago. Her companion pre vented a fatal result, however, fearing that sh would be charged with the crime. It is known hat she was influenced to the rash act by the nisfortunes of an old admirer, who is at pres at in the city prison, awaiting a trial for mur er. While she is lingering upon the brink of ie grave, she repeuts the unnatural act which ill hurry her before an awful tribunal, and re trust, sincerely atones for a wayward life Her history is somewhat extraordinary, and will interest the curious Her mother was a naive of Louisians, and her French blood was lightly tinged with the African. Indeed, she as a slave at one time—the property of a Mr. McQueen, a resident of the South .-She had gained her freedom, however, and re loved to Kentucky. After the death of Mc-Queen, his heirs instituted legal proceedings to uslave Mrs. Jones, which failed, and Mrs. J. ved alternately between this city and Frank rd, a free woman, and died a few years ago in is eity. Mary Elien, the suicide, is about ighteen years of age, possessed many persona tractions, and, if she could have been wor rom a life of dissipation and crime, would have een an ornament to society. She has an older ster, well-known in this city, who is doubtless er only surviving relative. Let the mantle of
